Occupation: Architect

Wife: Janice M. (Falkenau) Davis

Son: Corey B. Davis, age 6

Education: Attended Indiana University and Purdue University 1961/1962
Graduated Kent State University in 1967 with Bachelor of Architecture

After graduation from John Adams I entered college in pursuit of a degree in engineering. A year later I transferred to the School of Architecture at Kent State University, Kent, Ohio. At KSU I studied art, industrial art and architecture and received my degree in architecture.

While attending KSU I married my highschool sweet heart. Upon graduation I pursued my career while working in Saginaw, and East Lansing Michigan and to Denver, Colorado in 1970.

In 1981 I became a co-founder of Davis & Brandeberry Architects P.C. Our firm provides a full range of architectural services with specialties in historic renovation/restoration and in retail design and imagery.

My family and I enjoy the great outdoors and spend a lot of our spare time in the Colorado mountains hiking, backpacking, sailing and soaring.

Personal hobbies include my son, soaring in the mountains in my glider, windsurfing, woodworking and music.
